

OPENING EDITORIAL

The North American Division Youth and Young Adult department held its #ONETEAM Youth Advisories from February 26th - 28th. Over 200 online attendees participated in the event where reports were given about the current state of Youth ministry in the NAD. Videos of the advisory will be posted on our websites soon. Any voted reports and actions have been sent to the respective committees to be approved and implemented across the NAD afterwards. Club ministries (Adventurers, Pathfinders, and Master Guides) had their advisories on Sunday, Feb. 27 while youth, young adults, public campus, and camps had their advisories on Monday, Feb 28.

Even though the advisories were held online this year again, the messages and interactions among our participants were phenomenal. The committees are meeting in person in the next few months to vote on the Advisories' recommended actions.

Stay tuned for the updates on www.adventistyouthministries.org and also www.oneteamplaybook.org.

TALKING TO KIDS ABOUT GENERAL SAFETY

While for some young people it is easy to follow rules, others may not like to or care about rules or guidelines. If you work in children's or youth ministries, you as a parent or leader are responsible for the safety of the children and youth placed in your care. You can help protect kids and make your ministry a safer place by teaching them the following three simple safety subjects.
